RECORDER REPORT
LAHORE: The Punjab University's Pakistan Study Centre has arranged a special lecture on "the perception of Pakistan in Europe in the context of contemporary political and security challenges."
Professor Doctor Agnieszka

Kuszevska, an expert on South Asia from Poland's University of Social Sciences, delivered a keynote lecture about the current challenges Europe had been facing after the influx of refugees.

Speaking on the impact of these problems on Europe, she said, "It has given rise to the right wing extremism in the region and posing a great threat to the global and regional peace and security. The media and policy makers can play an important role in meeting these challenges. The image perception plays an important role in international relations. But unfortunately, because of several factors, Pakistan's image abroad has been quite negative. Pakistan has been perceived as a terrorist state because of negative media reports."
