least six civilians were killed by the Syrian regime and Russian fire in northwestern Idlib province in the past days, according to the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights.

The region of around three million people, many of them displaced by fighting in other areas, is one of the last holdouts of opposition fighting against the forces of Syrian President

Louvre Hotels Group said the deal was signed between Syria's Nazha Investment Group and "a partner with whom Louvre Hotels cooperates in the Middle East". The exact number of people killed in Syria's war is unknown but hundreds of thousands have died.

Several dozen medical facilities with links to the UN have been damaged or destroyed by international directives regarding Syria," the French company statement said. According to the website, The Syria Report, it is the first agreement with a western hotel operator since 2011, when the devastating conflict began. use of explosives. A woman in her twenties, who was passing when the explosion occurred in the centre of the city Lund around 2.30 am (0030 GMT), was found injured at the scene and taken to hospital.

Police Evelina Olsson told AFP she had "serious but not life-threatening injuries".

The blast was believed to be intentional. "We have reports that windows as far as 100 metres away have been damaged," Olsson said, adding that they had started an investigation for "causing bodily injury" and "destruction causing public endangerment".

No arrests had been made by noon Saturday but police had been in contact with the owners of the small convenience store which was the apparent target.

Criminal use of explosives has been increasing in Sweden with 120 cases reported in the first six months of 2019 compared to 83 in the same period last year, according to statistics published by newspaper Dagens Nyheter.

On Saturday, Sweden's Minister for Home Affairs Mikael Damberg said the government wanted to introduce harsher sentences for smuggling and possession of explosive substances.

light form of crude oil. In August last year, Iranian oil shipments to South Korea were 232,723 tonnes, or 54,802 bpd, the data noted.

For the January-August period, crude oil imports from Iran dropped 45.9% to 3.87 million tonnes, or 116,313 bpd, compared with 7.15 million tonnes over the same period a year earlier.

In total, South Korea's August crude oil imports rose 2.8% to nearly 13 million tonnes, or 3.05 million bpd.

Oil shipments from Saudi Arabia, South Korea's top oil supplier, rose 7.6% to 4.19 million tonnes in August, or 986,541 bpd, from a year earlier.

The country's January-August crude oil imports decreased 2.5% to 97.16 million tonnes year-on-year, or 2.92 million bpd, according to the data.—Reuters

Disney chief exits Apple board

SAN FRANCISCO: Disney chief Bob Iger resigned from Apple's board of directors as the companies are poised to launch rival online streaming services, according to a filing Friday with US regulators.

Iger's departure came the same day that the iPhone maker announced that its Apple TV+ subscription service with a budding library of original content will go live internationally on November 1, according to paperwork filed by Apple with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Apple unveiled iPhone 11 models this week with a price cut for the most basic models while also laying out plans for streaming and gaming services, as it bids to weather the slump in the global smartphone market. Apple's announcements appeared to be aimed at emphasizing value as the company looks to reduce its dependence on smartphones and tie digital content and other services to its devices.

Apple TV+ service will launch November 1 in more than 100 countries at $4.99 per month to compete against streaming giants like Netflix and Amazon. It promises a "powerful and inspiring lineup of original shows, movies and documentaries."

Apple said customers who purchase an iPhone, iPad, Apple TV, iPod touch or Mac will get the first year of the service for free.—AFP

New Italy govt lets rescued migrants disembark

ROME: Italy on Saturday agreed to allow rescue ship Ocean Viking to disembark 82 migrants on Lampedusa, in a reversal of the hardline policy under the country's ex-interior minister Matteo Salvini.

Far-right leader Salvini was forced out of office last month after bringing the government down, and the new coalition has been trying to forge its own migrant stance.

It is the first time in 14 months that Italy has offered a migrant rescue ship a safe port, although it took Rome six days and European guarantees to redistribute the migrants before it did so.

"The Ocean Viking just received instructions from the Maritime Rescue Coordination Centre of Rome to proceed to Lampedusa," SOS Mediterranee, which operates the vessel, tweeted.

French Interior Minister

Christophe Castaner said there had been an "ad hoc" agreement to divide the migrants between five countries — Italy, France, Germany, Portugal and Luxembourg. France and Germany have agreed to take 25 percent of the migrants each, with Italy to take 10 percent.

"We now need to agree on a genuine temporary European mechanism," Castaner added.

The Italian coastguard will send a vessel to pick up the migrants at sea in order not to disturb port operations, Italian media reported.

Under far-right leader Salvini, charity vessels with rescued migrants on board faced fines of up to a million euros as well as the arrest of the captain and impounding of the boat.—AFP

Tiananmen Square 'Tank Man' photographer dies

JAKARTA: The photographer who snapped the defining image of China's Tiananmen Square crackdown — a solitary man defiantly blocking the path of a column of tanks — has died in Indonesia, according to US officials.

American authorities confirmed the death of 64-year-old Charlie Cole in Bali, where the Texan had been a long-time resident.

"We offer our sincerest condolences to the family on their loss," a state department official told AFP.

Cole won the 1990 World Press Photo award for his picture of a man in a white shirt, carrying a shopping bag in each hand, striding out into the road the day after troops killed hundreds of pro-democracy protesters in the heart of Beijing.—AFP

Solid gold toilet stolen from English stately home

LONDON: A gang of thieves on Saturday stole an 18-carat gold toilet from Britain's Blenheim Palace, police said, causing flooding that damaged the world-famous stately home.

The fully-functioning toilet, dubbed "America", was created by Italian artist Maurizio Cattelan and estimated to be worth around £1 million.

A 66-year-old man was arrested following the burglary, which took place before dawn at the 18th-century estate near Oxford, southern England.

The toilet was one of the star attractions in an exhibition of Cattelan's works that opened on Thursday at the palace, a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Visitors were able to book time slots to use it — but only for three minutes each, to limit the queues.

More than 100,000 people used the loo during the year it was on display at New York's Guggenheim Museum.—AFP
