Disclosure of inside Information by listed Company in term of Section 15D(1)

NetSol Technologies Limited, a global supplier of leasing and financing solutions, today announced the launch of its business incubation platform for Pakistani technology entrepreneurs, with the induction of three startups in its first batch:

- Electroid: Home automation software that controls and monitors home power consumption;
- Tutorciti: Online classroom that provides one-on-one lessons for students in real-time with qualified teachers; and
- IClick: Online event planning platform.

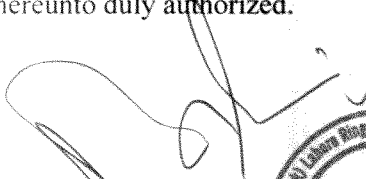

According to Mr. Salim Ghauri, CEO, "Nspire will provide an extended R&D capability to NetSol, without dilution of its resources and focus on the core business. Simultaneously, we hope to contribute to the ecosystem of entrepreneurship in Pakistan."

As a technology company, NetSol expects most ideas inducted into the Nspire program to be technology related, but given its commitment to entrepreneurship, some non-technology startups may be inducted, as well.

Every five months, three to five different start-up companies will work from NetSol's Head Office at Lahore and have access to staff, including programmers, marketers, among other key employees, to further develop and implement their business models. Each entity will have rent-free co-working space and will be assigned mentors, including executives from the tech industry, which are chosen based on the specific needs of each incubator company.
